NATURE TURNS THE TABLES

A few days ago the Ottawa Journal observed with evident satisfaction: "When it comes to jumping the price of wheat, grasshoppers and drought are the factors that experts and connoisseurs." Thus with hot winds blowing prairie farms away and grasshoppers hatching in millions, the farmers of the Wheat Pools had their thumbs in their vests, they might rightly high at a time when small mercies are so rare.

The Journal is right, of course, as to the superiority of drought and grasshoppers as crop curtailers. When it comes to really preventing wealth production on the farm, they are our eighteenth century governments, scarcity economists, and destitution propaganda backed out of the ring.

But after such outbursts of enthusiasm over the beneficent destructiveness of drought and grasshoppers, the Journal and its fellow-apostles of the gospel of want, it find it hard to understand, and still harder to explain, why the prairie farmers are whooping with delight because soaking rains have come, and blowing away, drowned the 'hoppers, and given a chance for at least a part crop in the area where crop curtailment measures were being carried out so successfully.

The farmers will perhaps find it equally hard to understand why they should be thought to be public enemies if they succeed in producing a crop of wheat and rescuing their families from relief. That at least have the satisfaction of knowing that "he who laughs last laughs best," and that those who hoped they were not to get a crop are in prospect of being disappointed.

SO THIS IS PROSPERITY?

Premier Bennett told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at Montreal that prosperity is here, or just about here, and that it is to be the greatest kind of prosperity the country ever saw.

The same day Mayor Davidson of Calgary said civic administrators in Alberta will find the "most serious crisis in history" within the next few days; while an Edmonton paper which supports Mr. Bennett's government spread across its front page a large type announcement that an "All-Alberta Relief Strike" loomed.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, speaking in Montreal recently, informed his hearers that the Government was to the world made a complete return to the prosperity of 1928-29 tomorrow, the serious prospect of unemployment would still confront the governments. For the inter-continental industry during the past few years has thrown thousands of men out of work.

Perhaps the Premier is right. This may be the kind of "prosperity" he and his colleagues have been aiming to bring about, the only kind they know how to bring about or think it possible to bring about;—with the Premier saying, "one person in 12 in Canada at work" on a half-pay, trying to suppress the other, "I pay up accumulated debts and taxes, and find $425,000,000 a year to pay interest on public bonds."

Assuming this condition to be the Government's conception of prosperity, the problem raised by Mr. Stevens still stands unanswered. What is going to be the victims of unemployment? Of men thrown out of work by thousands of industry back on a self-supporting and family-supporting basis? Is that is done there is no use talking about the prosperity of 1928-29 returning to Canada. What does Mr. Bennett propose to do about that?

NOTHING TO DO WITH THE CASE

Premier Brownlee says the leaders of the unemployed strikers in the Drumheller area are Communists.

Suppose they are, or suppose they were, and not the leaders only, but every man, woman and child among the unemployed strikers. What has that to do with the case? Communists need food like other people, and clothing and shelter and fuel. And so far as known the Drumheller strikers are not asking to be supplied with these things for nothing. They are asking to be given larger allowances in return for more work.

Where is the crime in the strikers advancing out of living wages the present scale of allowances insufficient? If there is not more work in sight for them to do, it is not their fault.

fault. If the Government has not enough money left to grant increased allowances, after paying full good-time interest rates on provincial bonds, the strikers are not responsible for the fact that the Government paid the claims of money ahead of the claims of humanity.

Suppose they are Communists, what of that? We have not yet set up an institution in this province and decided that relief claims shall be weighed according to the political opinions of the destitute. If Communists at Drumheller or elsewhere resort to violence, they can and should be dealt with accordingly. So long as their only "offense" is that they are in need, they should get the same consideration shown to U.F.A. members, Liberals and Conservatives who are in the same plight, with no attempt to discount their needs or obscure their deers by allusion to their political views.

The point to remember is that it is not communism that is in trial in Alberta, but capitalism. And unless we can show the Communist that he is as well off, or better off, under capitalism than he would be under communism, nothing can be gained, and unlimited damage can be done by giving him reason to think and say that he is being ostracized and his family penalized because it is a Communist.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Hon. Harold Nicholson, C.M.G., the high Foreign Office official, has written "Curzon The Last Phase" about his former Foreign Secretary. He tells two stories of the Foreign Office of Kestledon. They illustrate the great gulf that existed between the aristocrat and the common people—a gulf that Curzon tried ineffectually to bridge. His failure to bridge the gulf cost him the Premiership when it was his turn to resign. Within his grasp, the British Labour party objecting to him, after King George V had already summoned him to Buckingham Palace to request him to form a ministry, following the resignation of Bonar Law.

J. S. COWPER

The first one, Nicholson says, was that he denied its authenticity. It was about an occasion when he saw a number of British troops in the street. He was explaining to a very fat in Flanders. When he saw the naked Tommies disporting themselves in the steam, he is reported to have remarked: "Dear me, had no conception that the lower classes had such white skins."

The second one Curzon admitted, and related the humor of it. He was explaining to him. A cabinet minister met under Curzon's chairmanship to consider the official position of the British Empire. He had no recollections of the particular sort of horseplay and merriment that marked the lifting of the Seige of Maling. He had no recollection that has enriched the language with the word "mafficking."

It was felt that a more sober form of celebration must be observed. The view of the war endured in the Great War, and that the occasion must not be allowed to degenerate into the vulgarities of the present. Curzon expressed agreement. "At all costs," he said, "we must avoid it becoming a bore."

He had no recollection of the occasion. It connoted a form of Cockney celebration, and he pronounced it "be-ah-no." He imagined it was an Italian word rhyming with Tenno.

Among the unreported episodes of my early newspaper career was a church conference in Toronto. The year the dominion had been kept peace with his religious rivals in opening missions in the west. The Home Mission Board in Canada had been organized. It was a young man, the son of a very wealthy parent. He had been privately tutored and kept as much aloof from the world as the vulgarities of the present. He knew nothing of slang. But he took a poke at the aged veterans who manned the Home Mission Board.

He went on to say: "This situation, dear friends, reminds me of a story I once read. The dwellers in a certain village feared that fire might come and devastate their homes. So they met and decided to install a large pump. They got the pump and they were working over it. They said: 'Ha! now we are safe from the risk of danger.'"

"Years went by, until one night upon the midnight came the fire of 'Fire!' But the good people were not afraid. They said: 'Ha! we will man the pump and extinguish the fire!'"

But they man the pump. They pumped, and they pumped but no water came and the whole village was destroyed. After the fire they examined the pump and they found that the suckers of the pump had become rotten with disuse, so that they could not function.

"Ah, my friends," said this situation with our Home Mission Board. They have been depending entirely upon these old suckers!"

The good brother who knew no slang swept his hand over the meeting and said:

"The 'old suckers' looked amazed. Some of the conference laughed and a few applauded out of cordiality. But the speaker, who had probably never raised a laugh before, so he went on to improve the occasion.

"Yes, my friends," he said, "I have had too many rotten old suckers on the Board. When one of the Board broke in to object to being called a 'rotten old sucker' the Conference forgot its dignity and yodeled."

The sheltered brother knew no more about the implications of the phrase "rotten old sucker" than Curzon knew of the word "bean." Someone had to lead him aside and explain.

Q. Q. Q.

A Toronto parson who is said to be known as "the marrying parson" because of the number of matrimonial knots he ties, has undertaken to give some advice to young people who plan to marry.

He says: "I believe hundreds of thousands of marriages are based entirely on physical attraction, and when that is gone all is lost."

Physical attraction seems to be Nature's way of securing mating. In the animal world, it doesn't naturally follow among human beings that physical attraction ceases, or that when it does cease the marriage is broken. It is a vast community of interests built up as a result of the physical attraction—children, home, social interests, etc. And in an experience almost as wide as that of the "marrying parson," I don't know of any couple whose physical attraction for each other didn't include mental elements. It would be too great a task for a Canadian parson to suggest that hundreds of thousands of them marry under the blind impulse of sex, without any other consideration of the partner's cultural requirements.

However, the parson went on to illustrate what he said as that of the "marrying parson," by merely looking at the outside and finding themselves pleased with it.

His illustration of it is a logical conclusion, he'll find he's given more radical advice than he intended.

If the cessation of the Federal contribution to direct relief on June 15, as announced from Ottawa last week, is accompanied by or combined with the withdrawal of the Federal program of sufficient proportions and financed along the lines indicated last winter, then there will be no disbursements to the poor, purely a cessation without anything to compensate for it then serious difficulties lie ahead for thousands of families.—Saskatoon Star-Phoenix.

Health Is Contagious

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

Anyone who glances over medical books will be impressed with the fact that a large number of diseases are contagious. You often have been quarantined yourself, or know of friends who have been. This idea that disease is catching is often brought out in magazines devoted to health, in books, and in the daily papers.

When we have so much attention brought to the fact that disease is contagious, it is not surprising that sometimes wonder whether or not health is one of the most "catching" states of being. Whenever you come close to a person in good health, you immediately get a feeling of vigor, strength, power, energy and life, and immediately you are more sure and healthy yourself and have a desire to make yourself better.

Dr. F. MCCOY

Health is even more "catching" than disease for we can only become infected with disease when the resistance is low, but we can almost always take on a little more health. One book on psychology states that no one is so healthy as much health. It is impossible to conceive of too much health. The more health you have, the better the more you will inspire others.

If you are really on tip-top with abundant health, other people will be attracted to you. They cannot help it. Health attracts because it is good, it is the natural condition.

Some people fear a crowd on account of the idea of catching disease germs, yet there is always some person in every crowd who has every evidence of health, that is, a good skin, clear eyes, a vigorous body and a good-natured smile. His health is contagious.

Allow yourself to become thoroughly infected with health instead of thinking that you are contracting disease. You will find that health suggestion to yourself that you are enjoying health. Be healthy, yourself, so that you "give" it. Think of it as a contagious disease. It is perfect health in your mind; talk about it health—find out from healthy people what makes them healthy. And in the degree that you realize the wholesome, this abundant health and strength in yourself, you will carry it to all with whom you come in contact, for you will remember that health is contagious as well as disease. This is from a very excellent book by Ralph Trine, called "In Tune with the Infinite." The same idea is brought out in a book entitled "The Essentials of Healthful Living," by Sadler, when he writes: "Disease, generally speaking, is to be cultivated, but HEALTH IS CONTAGIOUS."

Another invigorating thought is brought out in the book by Dr. Joseph Labell called "Why Be Afraid?" People will catch health from themselves with health instead of disease. Health will become an epidemic in the world and let us hope that it will remain that way.

An epidemic of health! Now there is an uplifting idea for you to think about. Imagine that you are a germ, and that you are spreading over the world, infecting millions, spreading to every town and city. It is said that one person with an infectious disease will start an epidemic which will sweep over a whole city. Why not start your own epidemic of health? Try to be healthful and give healthful vibrations to everyone you meet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Miss E. G. Quince writes: "I am troubled with little white pimples which form under the skin around my eyes. What shall I do?"

ANSWER: The small white pimples which you describe are what are known as "whiteheads." Whiteheads are usually caused by the use of too much fat and oily foods, and I would advise you to eliminate such foods from your diet for a time to see how much you will be able to improve. A good treatment is to apply hot water to the face and follow by massage with a good cream.

QUESTION: Prem K. A. of Baton Rouge: "My brother and I are both suffering from skin trouble. My brother has a large sore on his back, and I have a large sore on my chest. What shall I do?"

ANSWER: Pellagra is more common in the southern states and is a disorder of the skin and of the digestive system. It is caused by a lack of vitamin B. The mouth is inflamed, there is a typical redness of the skin, poor appetite and some cases, mental derangement. The main cause of pellagra is a diet lacking in vitamin B. This substance is lacking in distilled corn meal, white flour, etc.

QUESTION: Mr. S. G. G. writes: "Could you please tell me the meaning of allergic diseases?"

ANSWER: Allergic diseases are those in which the body reacts to certain foods or to certain drugs. It is the result of allergy, but I do not know what this means."

ANSWER: The exaggerated sensitiveness of the body to certain foods or to certain drugs is called allergy and refers to an extreme reaction to foods which are wholesome to other people. I have recently prepared an article on this subject called "Allergic Diseases," and I will be pleased to send this to you.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

If June 12 is your birthday, the wheels of fortune will turn on this date with possibly more of a swing than at any other time of the year. It is a very little leisure time in which to take things easy. It might be advisable to keep both eyes wide open, in case a person who is not really interested puts a rather raw deal over on you. If alert, you should make money.

If a woman and June 12 is your birthday, you may find greater happiness and far more contentment if you make social life a secondary consideration and home the first. Never permit your love for social gaiety to absorb all your thoughts.

Children born on June 12 seldom, as they grow up, cause any unusual worry to their parents. They usually are perfectly natural, typical boys and girls.

Those born on June 12, as a rule, gifted with an unusual amount of ingenuity. If born on this date, you can quickly grasp essential facts, when dealing with involved matters.

The Case For Railway Unification

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

The address on this subject delivered by Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C., L.L.D., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, before the Canadian Political Science Association at a recent public meeting, and on most of the conclusions reached by Mr. Beatty to direct contradiction for two reasons.

First, the address is silent on results in the United States. Both the C.P.R. and the C.M.R. have great railway properties in the United States. Had Mr. Beatty been able to show that the railway properties of his company in the United States, being free of all Canadian political influences, were really making money, he would have had a firm basis for some of his conclusions.

But as these properties, the Soo line, the Wisconsin Central, the Duluth South Shore and Atlantic, and their branch lines, being always under the intelligent private management for which Mr. Beatty pleads, and also free from government competition, are to put it mildly, not in a position to be examples of success under private management, most of Mr. Beatty's conclusions as to the benefits of private management go by the board.

Secondly, the address while dealing at length and in detail with what Canada has done in the past, is absolutely silent on what Canada is doing today. The truth is that it is the present political trade policy in Canada which has wrecked both railway systems as regards earning power. Mr. Beatty must know that the high tariff policy has done to the railways what it does make no mention of it. This is a most notable omission.

Under the effect of the present high tariff the producers of Canada were given the impossible task of selling in world markets at world prices and buying in the most highly protected markets in the civilized world with the exception of the United States. The fact that there has been brought about widespread ruin both in Canada and the United States is more than a mere coincidence. It is the inevitable consequence of struggling for mercy in an attempt to create wealth by the special privilege route. The incredible laws of trade did the rest; and the two great nations in the world are direly suffering as a result because they continue the attempt to fight the world-governing laws of trade by legislation, explanation, and high tariff.

The remedy both for the nations and for the railways consists in re-opening the gates of commerce internationally by tariff reform, and opening the great Peace River empire to settlement and development by immediate railway extension to Finlay Forks at a cost of not ten million dollars thereby making provision for a major movement of population; and in re-opening our financial structure so as to increase currency in circulation up to an amount adequate to meet the commercial needs of the nation and to throw out the billions unproductively frozen up in public debt to the tune of three billions may be used in productive and constructive Canadian enterprises.

Whether we like it or not there is no other way out. The fact that our Canadian population has remained stationary in numbers within two or three millions for the last 50 years is undoubtedly the fact that our political game has been so badly played to have removed the special privilege ladder before the individual can prosper and the population increase.

Not even Mr. Beatty's ability can breathe life into the dead body of a national commerce annihilated by special privilege. The present urgent duty upon the parliament of Canada is to remove all political and special privilege hindrances in the way of the growth of a new Canadian commerce. The obligation is constructive and is not aided by any analysis of unfortunate happenings of the past. The evils of the present call for direct remedy.

Police Halt Grim Threat Of Maniac

Sergeant to the Camerons and he will instantly recall a dozen cases within his own knowledge. Take this one as a sample. Furor Africanus you must call them 'natives'—brought tales of bribery and corruption from the northern jungles to the capital. Cattle and goats were being stolen, their fleeces and skins were being robbed right and left.

Police Inspector Charles H. Ward looked up his cuffs and looked for trouble. But when he got there the dread threat of violence faded all witnesses.

They who had been the most furious were silent. They had made a mistake. They had been told that a definite case, and a definite witness to prove it, was at hand.

Court was assembled. The witness was sworn to tell the truth. He testified that he had seen a man in the white man's court. Not a word of lightning would strike him if he dared swear to it.

But he did swear and proved the case. It was a stunning blow. Not a square foot of mist hung in the blue sky. There was no more lightning, and started for his own mud hut yards away.

There came one terrific call of thunder and one bolt of lightning. The witness sprang to his feet, the crimson sands were and forever. There was no more lightning, and there was no more thunder, no cloud.

AMUSED—AT FIRST. Gory, death, and death was an English doctor, tolerantly amused at the English doctor's tale of a five-year-old son who was killed by lightning.

It was his idea of a good time to take a medicine, and he gave him a dose of his medicine. He tried to buy his medicine for a few more, but he was not allowed to.

He met Adele, the master's wife of the Niger, who can whistle for him, and he was not allowed to. He was not allowed to. He was not allowed to.

where and 'arrived, having the grain trade severely alone. SIGNIFICANT SILENCE.

That there is significance in his silence is shown by the similar silence of his supporters. H. J. Barber, M. P. for Fraser Valley, B.C., was elected on a platform of support for the domestic use of grain and grain products in B.C. from the unfair discrimination which is not aided by any analysis of unfortunate happenings of the past.

The evils of the present call for direct remedy. Why they keep silence one can only surmise. In the meantime, they keep the policy of leasing the water rights of the province to the water trust, and the water trust, by increasing taxation, has increased the price of water in the province.

Tulsa's troupe of basketballers here have had the best team to cross the border into Canada, and after Saturday night's game against the Grads, about 4,000 Edmonton fans were justified in saying that the rating was justified. . . . Percy Page's team scored a hard-earned victory over them but it was only after 40 minutes of see-saw play in which the team lead was continually shifting. . . . Performances of the two teams indicated this current series is going to be one of the hardest-fought ever witnessed on the old Arena battle floor, which has been the scene of many memorable struggles in the past. . . .

Lead Swings From One Team to the Other Throughout Exciting Contest—Both Teams Flash Fine Brand of Basketball

By BILL LEWIS

An inspired spirit of scoring in the last quarter Saturday night brought victory to J. Percy Page's Commercial Grads in the opening game of their series with Tulsa Stenographers, United States' titleholders, for the international basketball championship trophy. The Grads, who entered the Underwood Trophy. Leading by only two points as they entered the final period, Grade unleashed an offensive that was not to be denied. As a result, the Grads carried a one-sided lead when the series ended with a margin of 10, the score being 41 to 31.

Royals' Outfield Leads Hitting Parade for Early Season

Clayton Dolighan, hard-hitting outfielder, led the pace-setting Royals in leading hitting of the Senior Amateur Baseball League in the west. In the Amateur Baseball League game of the season at Renfrew Park Sunday afternoon, the final score was 4-0, that one upturning the Grads' lead in the hard-fought battle.

There was no sign of downheartedness in the Tulsa camp after that contest. . . . They figure they can whip the Grads—and handle it. . . . I'm not saying that just for something to fill up space but to tell you exactly how these southerners feel about it. . . . There's no question about the final outcome in their minds; they figure the Underwood Trophy is going theirs.

NOT SLOW MINUTE

The Oklahoma team led the strongest ladies' basketball team ever assembled in the U.S. lived up to their reputations, while the Grads were playing at the top of their form and the result was an exhibition that surpassed almost any other that has been staged in the big arena floor. From beginning to end the Grads were in top speed and there was never a dull moment throughout the four periods of the contest.

GOOD HURLING BUT

Up until that time, there hadn't been the semblance of a run, with Scotty Lee, of the waters, and Snelling Brooks, stocky Trochuville pitcher, both men keeping opposing batters well under control at all stages.

It was just the best basketball contest these glimmers have gazed upon in a long, long time. . . . And folks like this are going to be some more mighty fine things to see this week-end.

Teams To Clash In Second Game Series Tonight

Commercial Grads and Tulsa Stenographers will clash in the second game of their series for the international basketball championship trophy tonight, starting at 8:30 sharp.

ROYALS

C. Dolighan	4	13	3	33
Brooks	4	13	3	33
Scotty Lee	4	13	3	33

Incidentally, all good things seem to come at once. . . . Yesterday's final contest was played at Renfrew Park to date this year when the Royals whipped the Grads to bolster their position at the top of the leader.

REALLY SPARKLED

Both squads were at their well-drilled best and produced some combination efforts, great defensive work and some good shooting. Naturally, with the checking close, the Grads were able to move back in the best as players had to hurry practically every time they got the ball.

Scotly Lee and Snelling Brooks gave the folks a real pitcher's battle. . . . All the rest of the Grads' line was in line with the good work. . . . Webb King seems to have just the right amount of smarts to lead the Grads in the combination of Bud Wilfong, Duke Oust, and Snelling Brooks and Joe Shandro. . . . The team had no less than 18 shots in the game yesterday. . . .
